wuest translated new testament download . Amino acid sequence and structure of the subunit of a eucaryotic ryanodine receptor. Ryanodine receptors are a class of intracellular Ca<sup>2+</sup> release channels which bind to the lipophilic cationic compound ryanodine. The purified receptor has been reconstituted into phospholipid vesicles. The present report describes the amino acid sequence of a major subunit isolated from a eucaryotic ryanodine receptor. The primary structure of the receptor has been determined by peptide mapping and sequence analysis using different cleavage techniques. Comparison of the amino acid sequence deduced from the cDNA with the known sequence of the receptor subunit suggests that the ryanodine receptor is composed
